OCTOBER 6, 2024 † TWENTY-SEVENTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

From The Pastor

God is what God does. God is love. God loves. God is a relationship of persons in perfect communion, unity, undivided in identity, purpose, and intention. God is the purity of love in the Divine essence. The reading from the Book of Genesis today is a perfect example of the Divine identity and expression.

God gives and expresses who God is in the work of creation and the formation of the human person. As a Trinity of persons, God is not and cannot be alone. God is the essence of what it means to be in relationship expressed in the perfect flow of mutual love with a singular intention; the union of all that is.

Consider the wisdom of the inspired insight of the biblical author who writes: 'The Lord God said: "It is not good for the man (human person) to be alone. I will make a suitable partner for him."' ' Human beings are made in the image and likeness of God. God made us male and female in the physical bodily forms that most pleased God. God made us in the image of his own liking. More deeply, God made us in the image of the Divine Self. God made us out of love, for the sake of love, to be loving of ourselves, others, and God.

In the Divine essence of pure love in the union of perfect relationship, God created human beings to be an image of the Divine nature. Human beings share the DNA of the Divine nature in our endless longing for love, wholeness, and union with another. This is most richly expressed in the union of Christian marriage. It is the deepest longing of all human beings to know and to be known deeply by another. It is deep in our bones to be in relationships through which we come to know ourselves more deeply in the freedom of knowing and loving another. Love by nature is not singular. Love by nature is known and realized in free, mutual, self-giving love for another. This does not invalidate the single lifestyle for those persons committed to self-giving love in religious life, priesthood, or other expressions of committed love that nourish and enrich life for and with others.

Spiritually, marriage is a mirror of Divine love. In the reality of human love, this ideal does not mean perfection. Divine perfection will not be realized this side of heaven. In the Divine wisdom, marriage serves the dynamic of our inner longing for bonds of love that awaken the soul to the presence of God. Isn't this why people marry? Because they see and know themselves more clearly through the love of the other. Mutual love freely shared with another gives new life to each person. A new energy, creativity, commitment, and contentment is found. The soul is awakened to the inner nature of love within. A larger love is realized that reveals the Divine love in each of us.

This is the mirror. This is why marriage is a sacrament. This kind of love reveals and awakens the presence of God not only in the self but is also seen and experienced in the other. This is one expression of the phrase 'holy longing.' This is not just a Christian phrase. All world religions, poets, authors, and lovers use this expression. From beginning to end, this holy longing is our longing for God, for wholeness, for oneness with the love from which we came and long to return. Ponder this. What is your deepest longing? If you are honest, it is for love, to be known, to be valued, a part of, and meaningful to another and others.

This may sound a million miles from where you are in life or marriage, but it is not. The ideal of God must be worked out and realized in the messiness and heartache of daily living. Life and relationships are hard. They demand struggle, commitment, compromise, and ready forgiveness. The ideal will only be realized in the struggle to persevere in the daily mess in the hope of love's promise.

I am an imperfect man with my share of faults and weaknesses, but I know God has called me to be a priest; to commit the love that lives in me to the service of faith to sharing the gospel to the best of my ability. Is it perfect? No. Do I fail? Yes. Do I fall, get frustrated, or selfish? Yes. But the love in me persists, knowing the presence and action of God remains active in me.

No marriage is perfect. I have known people with great marriages filled with grace and fruitful love, and there are still struggles. I have known people in hard, wounded, and messy marriages. Somehow, they persevere. Sometimes not. Even in the trials, the grace of God is present. Love conveys grace even in the hardest of times. Remember your love for your spouse is a mirror or an image of your longing for God.

No one is expected to stay in an unresolvable situation of abuse, violence, persistent infidelity, or endless disdain. You are an image of God made for love. Marriage, friendship, or any bonds of human love are a mirror that reflects the life of God in you. Sit with your holy longing knowing it is the presence of the Lord. Exercise love whenever you can. God is near.

HEALTH LITERACY

October is here already. I want to take the time to remind you to get updated covid and flu vaccines. It is also breast cancer awareness month, if you have not discussed screening with your primary physician, it is time to do so. These are examples of being health aware or literate.

Health Literacy represents personal knowledge of what you need to do and understand to keep healthy. It is important to know your health care knowledge and beliefs as this can impact your health decisions. Health Literacy also includes reading and understanding health information you are given, communicating with health care professionals, and accessing health care services appropriate for you so you can make correct health care decisions.

Health care literacy will make you a healthier person, improve your communication with your provider and make you more comfortable and confident in participating in health care decisions. Your goal is a healthier you.

Beginning Oct. 30th

"Grant, Lord, that I may know myself that I may know thee." —Augustine

Much is said in Christian circles about knowing God. But Christians throughout the ages have agreed that there cannot be deep knowledge of God without deep knowledge of the self. Discerning your true self is inextricably related to discerning God's purposes for you. Paradoxically, the more you become like Christ, the more you become authentically yourself. In this profound exploration of Christian identity, psychologist and spiritual director David G. Benner illuminates the spirituality of self-discovery. He exposes the false selves that you may hide behind and calls you to discover the true self that emerges from your uniqueness in Christ. Freeing you from illusions about yourself, Benner shows that self-understanding leads to the fulfillment of your God-given destiny and vocation. Rest assured, you need not try to be someone you are not. But you will deepen your experience of God through discovering the gift of being yourself.

GETTING TO KNOW OUR SAINTS

ST. MARGARET CLITHEROW
1556-1586
MARCH 26

St. Margaret Clitherow, the pearl of York, was born Margaret Middleton in York, England. Her father, the sheriff of York, and her mother were protestants. England was a kingdom of shifting sands when it came to religion at this time. Margaret was born during the reign of Mary I who had made the Catholic religion the law of the land. However, prior to Mary’s reign, England had been a protestant state following the reformation in about 1534. Just two years after Margaret’s birth Elizabeth I was on the throne and England had returned to a protestant state.

Margaret married John Clitherow in 1571. John followed the protestant religion, but his brother was a Catholic priest. In 1574, Margaret converted to Roman Catholicism. She refused to go to Anglican services, for which her husband paid fines. In 1577 she was imprisoned for almost a year. She would be imprisoned twice more, her final imprisonment lasting almost two years. She used the time to live like a monk, in fasting and prayer, even learning to read. When she was released, she went on a night-time pilgrimage to the Tyburn gallows where five Catholic priests had been hung.

Margaret, following the example of Catholic noble, hid priests and allowed Mass to be celebrated in her home, a criminal offence made punishable by death by an Act of Parliament in 1581. Her home was raided on March 10, 1586, and a frightened boy gave up the location of the items for Mass. She refused to enter a plea for a trial by jury, so she was automatically sentenced to be pressed to death. Her children followed in her footsteps as Catholics. Margaret was canonized by Pope Paul VI in 1970 as one of 40 martyrs of England and Wales. St. Margaret Clitherow, pray for us!

The Hardness of Your Hearts

by Colleen Jurkiewicz Dorman

As far as I know, no one has ever woken up in the morning, looked out the window, and thought, “This is a beautiful sunrise. I’ll have to be very careful not to let it make me happy.”

But I’m certain that every day, lots of people — including, on not-infrequent occasions, myself — have woken up and remembered something that happened the day before. Something that made us feel upset or frustrated or insulted. And we thought to ourselves, “That makes me so, so angry.” And we’ve pictured the face of the person who made us feel that way, and we have scoffed with disgust.

And we hold onto that anger because anger feels so much better than sadness. And deep within ourselves, in the place where we feel all the love and pain and confusion that is inherent in human existence, we harden.

Nobody ever intends to be hard-hearted. That’s just the stuff of Bond villains and horror flicks. No, in real life a hardened heart isn’t a conscious choice. It’s a reflex. It’s just us trying to protect ourselves, to be strong — or, at least, to embody the version of strength offered by a fallen world.

A heart of stone is not so easily scratched, you see. But it’s also not so easily warmed or touched or moved.

A heart hardened by resentment and pain and anger is not just protected from injury. It is protected from the impact of the whole spectrum of tender feelings. It is not open to forgiveness, so it cannot feel the rush of life-giving mercy. It is closed off to new ideas, so it can never feel the awe of discovery.

There is a reason we are called to guard ourselves against hard-heartedness. God gave us hearts of flesh and blood. They are hearts that can be broken, yes — but also, they are hearts that can be made new.

May all the deceased be welcomed into paradise!

INSPIRATION FOR THE WEEK

To follow Jesus, we must cast off all illusions of importance and wisdom. We must embrace our own smallness, rejoice in our own weakness. In doing that, we become like true children and discover the saving strength of our God.

QUESTIONS OF THE WEEK FOR REFLECTION

First Reading: Gn 2:18-24

Today’s reading from Genesis provides the foundation for our Christian understanding of marriage. Who in your life has a happy and successful marriage?

Second Reading: Heb 2:9-11

The author of Hebrews teaches us we are united with Jesus as one family in our suffering and death. Are there any family members who need your support and comfort this week?

Gospel: Mk 10:2-16 or 10:2-12

The Pharisees learned that Jesus holds a higher standard on marriage than even Moses. Does Jesus’s position on marriage surprise you? ©LPi

WHY DO WE DO THAT? CATHOLIC LIFE EXPLAINED

ANNULMENTS

Question: I read in the catechism that marriage is indissoluble. Why then does the Church issue annulments?

Answer: Sacramental marriage is indeed indissoluble. You can find this in several places in the Catechism of the Catholic Church. Indissolubility is foundational to the union of marriage (CCC 1646) and required by spousal love (CCC 1644). This quality of marriage draws its meaning from the fidelity of Jesus to his Bride, the Church (CCC 1647). Spouses give themselves forever to each other. Through the vows and their consummation, the spouses form a covenantal bond that binds them as one. Indissolubility presumes and depends on this sacramental bond between the spouses.

Sometimes, however, there are impediments to marriage that are overlooked, poorly understood, or unknown. It is possible that at the time of the vows, something was either present or absent that made the consent invalid. The ceremony itself does not bring about the sacrament. The priest is the official witness of the Church, but he is not the minister of the sacrament. The husband and wife are the ministers of the sacrament to each other. Without the full, free, and able consent of the man and the woman, no sacrament takes place. An annulment does not destroy the marriage bond. It is an acknowledgement that the sacramental bond did not form in the first place.
